Zoe is a litigator whose practice spans personal injury and insurance defense, labor and employment disputes, and federal administrative matters. She represents clients across a range of industries in complex civil litigation, guiding them from early case assessment through resolution.

Zoe has substantial experience managing high-volume dockets and handling matters before administrative agencies and courts, including proceedings before the Department of Labor and administrative law judges. Her work includes defending insured clients, advising on employment-related claims, and representing parties in general liability and ERISA-related disputes. Zoe regularly conducts in-depth legal research and translates complex legal issues into clear, practical guidance for clients.

Outside of her legal practice, Zoe was a collegiate soccer player, where she developed the discipline, teamwork, and competitive drive that continue to inform her approach to litigation.
