Bryce counsels companies, equity owners, boards of directors, and executive leadership teams on complex business and legal matters. With more than 25 years of experience, including serving as chief legal officer and general counsel for large national and international organizations, he brings a practical, business-focused perspective to transactions, governance, risk management, and strategic decision-making.

Bryce works closely with clients on mergers and acquisitions, corporate finance transactions including providing valuable guidance on secured and unsecured credit facilities, governance matters, executive counseling, commercial agreements, and organizational change initiatives. He helps business leaders navigate opportunities and challenges while balancing legal, operational, and commercial considerations.

Over the course of his career, Bryce has led acquisitions, divestitures, joint ventures, and financing transactions with aggregate values in the billions of dollars. His experience includes advising on public company matters, securities compliance, international business operations, corporate restructuring, executive leadership transitions, employment-related issues, and complex commercial disputes.

Before entering private practice, Bryce spent more than a decade as a chief legal officer and general counsel, advising boards of directors and executive teams on a broad range of strategic and operational matters. That in-house experience gives him a practical understanding of the challenges clients face and allows him to provide guidance that is aligned with business objectives and focused on execution.
