Chris is a business litigation associate with a strong background in legal research and writing. He has experience handling matters in a variety of commercial contract disputes. Prior to joining the firm, Chris was a law clerk for a defense firm, where he drafted motions and briefs addressing constitutional issues, assisted clients with court petitions to obtain vehicle titles, and played key roles in discovery, case development, and trial strategy. His experience provides him with a practical understanding of litigation and a detail-oriented approach to advocacy. Chris earned his J.D. from Capital University Law School, where he served on the Associate Board of the Law Review and supported scholarly research and writing initiatives.
