Ariel (Ari) Fox's practice focuses on commercial litigation and investigations. She has represented individuals, corporations, boards of directors, and government-owned entities in a wide variety of complex commercial disputes, including contract and construction litigation, and tort and securities class actions before federal and state courts at the trial and appellate level. Ari frequently advises on pre-litigation matters and regulatory best practices.

Ari also has extensive experience conducting internal and government investigations both domestically and abroad involving alleged discrimination, civil theft, and violations of the False Claims Act and Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. She has presented investigative findings before the DOJ, SEC, and Office of the Comptroller of the Currency.

Prior to joining the firm, Ari worked in the New York office of an international law firm and clerked for the Honorable Kenneth M. Karas on the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Ari received her B.A. from Cornell University and her J.D. from Columbia Law School, where she was recognized as a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and James Kent Scholar and served on the Columbia Law Review.
