Scott is the leader of the firm's tax planning team and co-chair of the firm's private equity industry team. The scope of Scott's tax practice encompasses tax planning for business formations, ownership arrangements, LLC agreements and M&A transactions.

Scott's corporate practice extends to handling M&A transactions, equity compensation arrangements and general corporate law matters.

Scott is recognized for his tax planning work with founders, investors, and businesses with respect to their qualified small business stock (QSBS) issues. Scott has written numerous articles addressing QSBS planning issues, and he has developed a national practice handling Section 1202 and 1045 issues. Scott's focus is on securing and maximizing Section 1202's generous tax benefits for his clients.

Scott has represented companies, founders, investors, management teams, executives, PE sponsors, family offices and individuals across a wide variety of industries, including healthcare, direct marketing, gaming, industrial and commercial real estate development, distributorship, software and hospitality. Scott applies his expertise and experience to assist clients in achieving their business objectives, whether that means limiting an exposure to contingent liabilities or finding the most tax efficient structure for a business transaction.

Scott's Relevant Experience

Tax Experience

Scott Dolson and Frost Brown Todd's tax planning team have substantial expertise and experience handling tax planning for corporations, S corporation and pass-through entities, including choice of entity planning, equity compensation planning and M&A planning.

The tax planning team's Section 1202 and Section 1045 work involves tax planning and implementation of planning ideas for founders, investors, venture firms, venture funds, PE firms, PE funds, family offices, wealth planners, investments bankers, accountants and attorneys, including (i) helping clients navigate through their choice of entity decision, and in particular their decision whether to operate as a C corporation with the hope of benefiting from the Section 1202 gain exclusion; (ii) helping client satisfy Section 1202's and Section 1045's eligibility requirements; and (iii) helping clients prepare for a potential future IRS audit by documenting their eligibility to claim the Section 1202 gain exclusion.

FBT's QSBS practice encompasses the following:

Assisting businesses:

- helping them make choice of entity decisions
- converting partnerships (LLC/LPs) to corporations, along with related start-up tax planning
- restructuring their businesses that are operating as S corporations for the purpose of positioning owners to reap various business and tax benefits, including the Section 1202 gain exclusion
- providing tax advice and tax opinions, when appropriate, with respect to Section 1202 and Section 1045 issues
- advising founders, management teams and investors with respect to Section 1202's and Section 1045's eligibility and documentation requirements
- restructuring business assets and activities to attain and maintain qualified small business status, including businesses engaged in multiple activities or with operating through subsidiaries or joint venture investments

- advising them with respect to the interaction of equity compensation arrangements with Section 1202
- advising them with respect to the interaction of various equity and equity rights, including convertible debt, SAFEs, stock options, and stock grants with Section 1202
- providing Section 1202 and Section 1045 tax planning in connection with M&A transactions, including those involving equity rollovers
- helping companies formulate their communications with investors, including representations and covenants supporting QSBS eligibility

Assisting founders and service providers:

- advising taxpayers how to expand Section 1202's usual $10 million cap on the gain exclusion
- planning for the rollover of QSBS proceeds under Section 1045, including utilizing newly formed C corporations for start-up activities or to serve as a vehicle to acquire qualified small businesses
- advising taxpayers with respect to remedying Section 1202 eligibility problem
- providing Section 1202 and Section 1045 tax planning in connection with M&A transactions, including those involving equity rollovers
- addressing gift and estate transfer issues, including working with Delaware and Nevada trusts and estate and trust counsel in various jurisdictions throughout United States
- advising them with respect to the interaction of equity compensation arrangements with Section 1202
- advising them with respect to the interaction of various equity and equity rights, including convertible debt, SAFEs, stock options, and stock grants with Section 1202

Assisting investors:

- documenting eligibility for claiming Section 1202's gain exclusion or a Section 1045 rollover of QSBS proceeds.

- providing tax advice and tax opinions with respect to Section 1202 and Section 1045 issues
- advising taxpayers with respect to efforts to expand the basic $10 million or 10X cap on the Section 1202 gain exclusion
- addressing gift and estate transfer issues, including working with Delaware and Nevada trusts and estate and trust counsel in various jurisdictions throughout United States
- planning for the rollover of QSBS proceeds under Section 1045, including forming C corporations as vehicles for start-up activities and as acquisition vehicles

Assisting investment funds:

- QSBS planning for holders of carried interests, including tax opinions with respect to the sharing of Section 1202 gain exclusion by holders of carried interests
- QSBS planning for the holding of QSBS through LLCs/LPs
- documenting eligibility for claiming the Section 1202 gain exclusion
- planning for the rollover of QSBS proceeds under Section 1045, including the use of newly formed corporations as vehicles for start-up activities or as vehicles for acquiring a qualified small business

General Business Experience
