Angie is a member of Frost Brown Todd's Electronic Data Discovery ("EDD") Group. Her experience in the group has included extensive experience in preservation, collection, review, analysis and production of documents and electronically-stored information ("ESI") in a variety of investigative, litigation and regulatory contexts. She has also served as a team leader for review teams, serving as liaison with trial teams to assure the timely handling and analysis of material evidence in the proceeding. Angie's experience in the group includes work on almost forty matters, including proceedings involving insurance fraud, contract analysis, premise liability, product liability and the banking industry.

Before joining the EDD Group, Angie was a trial attorney representing individuals and companies, including insurance companies, hospitals, and trucking and solvent companies. She helped those clients obtain successful outcomes in bench and jury trials in Kentucky state and federal courts.
