Joe is an electronic data attorney within the Business Litigation practice group. Before joining the Electronic Data Discovery Team, Joe worked within the firm's Data and Innovation Department, implementing dashboards for executive use, creating algorithms to extract information from different litigation sources, and performing data analysis for different practice groups and departments within the firm. Prior to joining Frost Brown Todd, Joe earned a bachelor's and master's degree in business analytics from the University of Cincinnati. During this time, he acquired significant experience within the banking, medical, and insurance sectors in different companies, all before attending the University of Cincinnati Law School. While in law school, Joe served on the Moot Court Honor Board, while being their finance director for the '23-'24 school year. He also participated in UC's Trial Team.
