Ryan focuses his practice on the complex financing of commercial real estate transactions in the multifamily industry, particularly in the areas of affordable housing and historic preservation. He primarily represents investors in structuring and closing new construction and rehabilitation deals involving state and federal low-income housing tax credits, historic rehabilitation tax credits, new markets tax credits and multiple layers of financing, including federal, state, and local loan and grant programs.

Ryan joined the firm in 2024 after participating in the firm's Summer Associate Program. He graduated from the University of Kentucky, Rosenberg College of Law with summa cum laude honors. During his time at UK, Ryan served as a staff editor on the Kentucky Law Journal. Prior to law school, Ryan earned a BSBA in Marketing from the University of Louisville.
