Carrie focuses her practice on business litigation. She has represented business clients in a broad variety of commercial disputes, including breach of contract, business torts, and other general commercial litigation matters. She has substantial experience representing both plaintiffs and defendants in litigation, as well as advising clients on pre-litigation matters. In addition to her business-litigation practice, Carrie also has experience assisting clients with appellate and regulatory matters and internal investigations.

Carrie graduated summa cum laude from William & Mary Law School in 2017. She received a Graduate Fellowship in election law from William & Mary, where she enjoyed researching election law issues. While in law school, Carrie served as an Articles Editor of the William & Mary Law Review and as a member of the Moot Court Team and represented her class on the Board of the Student Bar Association. She also participated in her law school's Appellate and Supreme Court Clinic, where she briefed and argued pro bono appeals involving First and Fourth Amendment issues before the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Prior to joining FBT Gibbons, Carrie clerked for the Honorable David J. Hale of the United States District Court for the Western District of Kentucky. Carrie is also a proud alumna of the University of Louisville, where she served as student body president her senior year.
