He is included on the Best Lawyers® list for Commercial Litigation and serves on the firm's Board of Directors.

Bill is litigation counsel in high-profile cases involving hundreds of millions of dollars. He also appreciates that smaller disputes may have particular significance, especially for privately held companies, family offices, and individuals, which is why he prides himself on practical problem solving.

He is a trial lawyer fully conversant in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Evidence and the state court rules of New Jersey and New York. Having served a clerkship in the United States District for the District of New Jersey, he is especially attuned to the Local Civil Rules and Local Patent Rules of the District of New Jersey. He represents companies from diverse industries, including pharmaceuticals, financial services, consumer goods, energy, raw materials, and healthcare. He litigates a wide range of matters in federal and state courts, including complex contractual and commercial disputes, trademark and patent infringement, business torts, partnership disputes, and antitrust.

Bill's litigation training and experience are appreciative assets when he is advising family offices and privately held companies who seek his advice for efficient solutions to problems that require discretion and confidentiality.

In his sports and entertainment practice, he advises professional athletes, Olympians, coaches, teams, and entertainers. He represents athletes in contract negotiations with professional clubs and in sponsorship endorsements. He is certified as a contract advisor by the National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) and is qualified as an agent by the International Federation of Association Football (FIFA).
