Hemp and CBD businesses continue to face challenges with banking, credit card processing and other financial transactions. In this webinar, Bill Repasky and Nolan Jackson of Frost Brown Todd's Hemp Industry Team address the state of the law and realities hemp-related businesses must be prepared to address when working with banks, from opening accounts to common lending questions. Given the great importance of credit card payments for many retail operators, our presenters also dive into the details of working with credit card processors and where the major card associations are in processing hemp-related transactions.
