Construction Executive has named Frost Brown Todd (FBT) to its annual ranking of The Top 50 Construction Law Firms™ in the United States.

The ranking, which appeared in the June issue of Construction Executive, highlights the size of and experience within FBT's construction practice group, as well as our broad geographic reach serving the industry.

"It's a real honor to be recognized by Construction Executive Magazine," said John Higgins, Construction Practice Group Leader. "Frost Brown Todd's keen understanding of the construction industry has resulted in enduring relationships with many construction firms and industry professionals across the country. These connections allow us to tap into valuable resources and to forge a deep awareness of their specific legal needs. We're thrilled this work is being noticed."

The winners were selected from more than 600 U.S. law firms. Qualified law firms were selected based on various factors, including their construction practice's revenue, the number of attorneys in the practice, the percentage of firm revenue from the construction practice, states in which the firm is licensed to practice, the age of the practice, and the number of construction industry clients.

This is the third—and second consecutive—time FBT has been ranked in the top 50 by Construction Executive. FBT's construction practice focuses on everything from public-private partnerships to contract documents, construction defects, dispute resolution, and M&A transactions. The group aims to help developers, owners, contractors, and subcontractors minimize risks, protect legal rights, and preserve the bottom line.
